

Pavilions

See and be seen: International pavilions at electronica India.

Foreign trade fairs and exhibitions are one of the most effective tools of export marketing. They are also of great relevance to the acquisition of new partners, for purchases and investments overseas. Many countries rely on the benefits of an international pavilion and encourage their domestic companies to exhibit abroad. Some even provide subsidies either by ministries, associations or other official bodies.

The advantages of international pavilions are obvious: Whether you are an exhibitor or a visitor, the visibility of pavilions ensures optimum orientation and helps everyone find the partners they are looking for. Participating in an international pavilion at electronica India furthermore is a convenient way, especially for small and medium-sized companies. Take your time and meet in the respective lounge area of the pavilion for initiating business. There will be different pavilions at electronica India. We will update this site on a regular basis.

You will find additional information and the list of the international and theme pavilions at electronica India here.
